Deadeye

This is one of our original Interactive Teaching Videos and follows a slightly different presentation in that it is not broken up into lessons. There is enough content to use throughout a term and teachers can select from it and follow it at their own pace.

Deadeye is also suitable for presentation so get in touch for documentation and a performance video of Deadeye.

Spelling Games

These are fun, classroom games that support teaching spelling. Spelling words can be chosen from your spelling lists or from the children themselves and you can easily ensure that these match the abilities of your students where appropriate and also challenge able spellers.

Arm Spelling is suitable for all ages while Spelling Popcorn and Bump Away are more suitable for P3 upwards.

Terry's Literacy

Terry's Literacy Overview

The following three videos follow our character Terry Teacake in his classroom as he and classmates embark on their creative writing lessons. The lessons look at sentences and basic punctuation aspects such as capital letters, full stops and question marks. They are aimed at Middle school (age 7-9) but teachers can assess suitability for their classes.

TEACHER TRAINING VIDEOS

Little Red Training Video

For teachers of P1-P3 this training video shows Louise with a young class using the story of Little Red Riding Hood. Teachers can try this out for themselves in their classroom space. The teaching level is Intermediate, assuming that class teachers have some experience of teaching Drama.

The Story of Boo Training Videos

Drama Literacy Based On The Book Wonder by R J Palacio

These training videos show Louise with a class of P7 students doing Drama Literacy based on their class novel.

This storyline is a parallel to the Wonder content and is set in a monkey colony. We found that the removal of the students from a human storyline helped them to understand and feel empathy for the main character through Drama.

Louise did not tell the students that the Drama was related to the novel.

The development of this Drama Literacy Topic was extremely powerful and after several weeks the students realised that they were actually doing the "Wonder Story" within an animal context!

Teachers reading this novel can use the techniques shown with their classes and really bring understanding to the issues raised in the book.

Top Tips For Teaching Drama

Below are two examples of comparison lessons to try out the impact of using Teacher In Role Technique up against a more traditional Directive approach.

We have set these inside well known stories and you can have fun with your students as well as running the test.

Drama Literacy Lesson Plans For Teachers To Use For Themselves

Drama Lesson Plans – we are starting to include Drama lessons for teachers to try out for themselves to advance the Training Aspect of the Drama Literacy Resource. These lessons feature the techniques used in our Drama videos but teachers will be doing it for themselves here using detailed plans with techniques explained with suggested music and Literacy activities throughout. This parallels the resource progression for class teachers and we feel will be valuable CPD.

The lessons will be added throughout this coming term and if teachers have any requests then they can let us know and we will include these if we can. We are keen to take a responsive approach to the content wherever possible, so getting teachers input is very much appreciated.
